

From W. L. Moran, Father Kennedy's Exegesis of the Holy Office Monitum,

on Gerald T. Kennedy, OMI, The Holy Office Monitum and the Teaching of Scripture, AER 145(1961), 145-51

pp. 148-149: "The literary form method of interpreting Scripture, while helpful, is subtly dangerous and should be used almost as an exception to the ~~rule~~ rule."

This contradicts Divino afflante Spiritu, Enchiridion Bibl., 557, 558, 560

The Monitum does not contradict Divino afflante: it reaffirms Humani generis, which affirms literary forms, ~~EB 580~~
