

by Rosemary Haughton

"...a great work that proceeds from profound spiritual experience and seeks concrete and effective communication..." Bernard Lonergan, S.J.

"...creates again that curious excitement — "break-through" — Haughton readers have come to expect."
Mary Collins, O.S.B.

This astonishing new book is about the passion of God for human beings. To explore and describe the nature of God's passion, Haughton looks to human passion and human love.

The Passionate God is also a book about reality and language, insofar as they have a bearing on the subject of God's passion for man. It is a book about human experiences of breakthrough and exchange of life, and about those intense moments Christians call Incarnation, Resurrection, the Church and Eucharist.

Rosemary Haughton, a mother of ten children, is known throughout Europe and America as a pioneer in theological thinking. She is the author of over thirty books, including On Trying To Be Human, The Mystery of Sexuality, (Paulist Press), and Problems of Christian Marriage. (Paulist Press)

"In practice, the inability to cope with the concept of Incarnation has always gone hand in hand with an inability to accept the miraculous element in the gospel accounts, and so with a desire to dispose of it either by making Jesus so much God and so little human that the miraculous is merely his home territory, or by making him so much man and so little God (no more than every human being) that miracles become and affront and must be disbelieved."

- Exchange of Life
- The Face of Beatrice
- The Refusal of Exchange
- Resurrection
- The Body of Christ
- Baptized in His Death
- Clothed With the Sun
- Daying Each Other's Life
- Envoi

Order Number 0-8091-2363-5
Paper $9.95
5 1/2" x 8 1/2"
380 pages

The Passionate God

by Rosemary Haughton

"...a great work that proceeds from profound spiritual experience and seeks concrete and effective communication..." Bernard Lonergan, S.J.

"...creates again that curious excitement — "break-through" — Haughton readers have come to expect."
Mary Collins, O.S.B.

This astonishing new book is about the passion of God for human beings. To explore and describe the nature of God's passion, Haughton looks to human passion and human love.

The Passionate God is also a book about reality and language, insofar as they have a bearing on the subject of God's passion for man. It is a book about human experiences of breakthrough and exchange of life, and about those intense moments Christians call Incarnation, Resurrection, the Church and Eucharist.

Rosemary Haughton, mother of ten children, is known throughout Europe and America as a pioneer in theological thinking. She is the author of over thirty books, including On Trying To Be Human, The Mystery of Sexuality, (Paulist Press), and Problems of Christian Marriage, (Paulist Press).

"In practice, the inability to cope with the concept of Incarnation has always gone hand in hand with an inability to accept the miraculous element in the gospel accounts, and so with a desire to dispose of it either by making Jesus so much God and so little human that the 'miraculous' is merely his home territory, or by making him so much man and so little God (no more than every human being) that miracles become an affront and must be disbelieved."

- Exchange of Life
- The Face of Beatrice
- The Refusal of Exchange
- Resurrection
- The Body of Christ
- Baptized in His Death
- Clothed With the Sun
- Daying Each Other's Life
- Envoi

Order Number 0-8091-2383-5
Paper $9.95
5 1/2 x 8 1/2
380 pages

"Once in a while I come across a book that fulfills all my fantasies about good publishing. This certainly is the book."

— Henri Nouwen

"A truly beautiful piece of writing and an inspiring life to all of us. I have passed it on to my friends to read."

— Mairead Corrigan
Nobel Peace Prize Laureate

"I very much enjoyed this sensitive retelling of the life story of the famous Trappist. The book contains dozens of photographs . . . Many of them have never been published before. Forest's book is a worthy contribution to the growing number of books about this complex and influential man who was a prophet for our times."

"I like it very much . . . A noble work!"

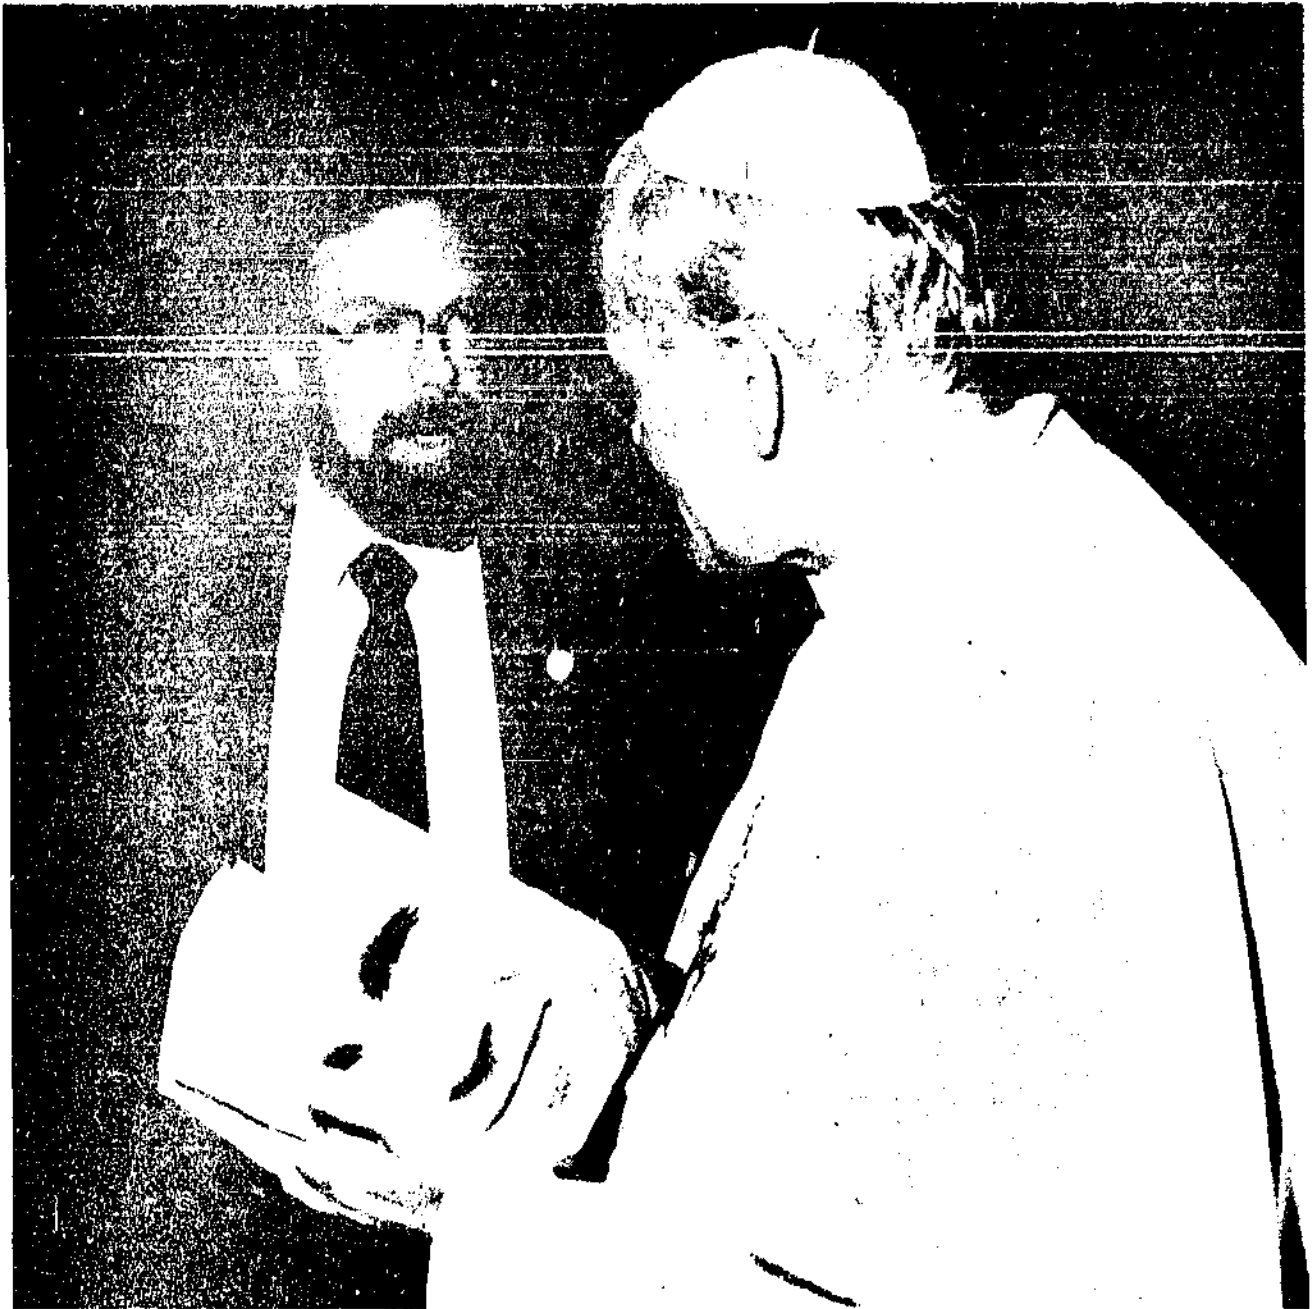

— Robert Lax

"What a great job . . . It is a good, tight piece of writing with life and warmth to it."

— Naomi Burton Stone
Merton authority

"Forest's research and writing are solid, and his book fills a longstanding need for a "simple" yet complete Merton biography. Don't be surprised if this turns out to be the Merton book most read by future generations."

— Commonweal

Pope John Paul II being presented with a copy of THOMAS MERTON A Pictorial Biography by the author James Forest issue p. 17

Paulist Press Book Catalog

Paulist Press, 545 Island Road, Ramsey, New Jersey 07446 (201) 825-7300

Issue No. 70 — Summer 1981