

It remains that the sum of two and two is a truth within the competence of human reason. It is not a mystery different hidden in God that could not be known^{by man} unless it had been revealed. And while mathematicians are extremely careful and accurate people, no one claims infallibility for them.

that is being understood. That the sum of two and two is four, is a truth. It was known to the ancient Babylonians, to the Greeks, to modern mathematicians they have been the first to propound theological doctrines that later became church doctrines
